File of Style.css

1. *** { ... }:

   This is a universal selector that applies the defined styles to all elements on the page.

2. padding: 0;:

   This removes any default padding from all elements. Padding is the space between an element's content and its border.

3. margin: 0;:

   This removes any default margin from all elements. Margin is the space outside the border of an element, creating space between elements.

4. box-sizing: border-box;:

   This changes the box model used for elements. With border-box, the width and height of an element include its padding and border, making layout calculations more intuitive. This means if you set an element to be 100px wide, the padding and border are included within that 100px.

5. scroll-padding-top: 2rem;:

   This adds padding to the top of the viewport when scrolling to an anchor link or target element, ensuring that there's some space above the element. The 2rem value is relative to the root element's font size, providing a consistent spacing.

6. text-decoration: none;:

   This removes any text decorations like underlines from all text elements. This is often used to style links ( elements) so that they don't have the default underline.

7. list-style: none;:

   This removes default list item markers (bullets or numbers) from unordered (<ul>) and ordered lists (<ol>).

8. scroll-behavior: smooth;:

   This makes scrolling behavior smooth for anchor links and other scroll actions. Instead of jumping instantly to the target, the page will scroll smoothly.

9. font-family: "Poppins", sans-serif;:

   This sets the default font for all text on the page. "Poppins" is a specific font (if available), and if it's not available, the browser will use a generic sans-serif font instead.
